

Worn Women

Women, worn and tired from overwork, need a tonic. That feeling of weakness or helplessness will not leave you of itself. You should take Wine of Cardui, that effectual remedy for the ailments and weaknesses of women. Thousands of women have tried Cardui and write enthusiastically of the great benefit it has been to them. Try it—don't experiment—use this reliable, oft-tried medicine.

TAKE CARDUI
The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Rena Hare, of Pierce, Fla., tried Cardui and afterward wrote: "I was a sufferer from all sorts of female trouble, had pain in my side and legs, could not sleep, had shortness of breath. I suffered for years, until my husband insisted on my trying Cardui. The first bottle gave me relief and now I am almost well. Try Cardui. 'Twill help you."

CLEAN-UP DAY.

Whereas, The City Council, at its regular meeting May 24th 1910, Resolved to have a clean up day, for the city of Rich Hill, and that the superintending of the work be turned over to a committee of ladies, and that the city be divided into districts and that each district be under the supervision of a committee of ladies who will be assisted by the Board of Health and the Street Commissioner.

Now, I, S. B. Cole, Mayor of the city of Rich Hill, most respectfully request, that all citizens interested in the welfare, appearance and health of our city, turn out on the 9th day of June, 1910, clean up, remove all rubbish, dirt, filth, tin cans, etc., and pile them either in the alleys or streets, handy for the teams of the Street Commissioner, which will follow and haul off all such refuse, except stable manure.

S. B. Cole, Mayor.

Grass is the forgiveness of nature—her constant benediction. Fields trampled with battle, saturated with blood, torn with the ruts of cannon, grow green again with grass, and carnage is forgotten. Streets abandoned by traffic become grass grown like rural lanes, and obliterated. Forests decay, harvests perish, flowers vanish but grass is immortal. Beleaguered by the seven hosts of winter, it withdraws into the impregnable fortresses of its subterranean vitality and emerges upon the first solicitation of spring. Sown by the winds, by the wandering birds, propagated by the subtle horticulture of the elements which are its ministers and servants, it softens the nude outline of the world. Its tenacious fibers hold the earth in its place and prevent its soluble components from washing into the wasting sea. It invades the solitudes of the deserts, climbs the inaccessible slopes and forbidden pinnacles of mountains, modifies climates and determines the history, character and destiny of nations. Unobtrusive and patient it has immortal vigor and aggression. Banished from the thoroughfare and the field, it hides its time to return and when vigilance is relaxed, or the dynasty has perished, it silently resumes the throne from which it has been expelled, but which it never abdicates. It bears no blazonry of bloom to charm the senses with fragrance or splendor, but its homely hue is more enchanting than the lily or the rose. It yields no fruit in earth or air, and yet, should its harvest fail for a single year, famine would depopulate the world.
